THE ROLEX IJRC TOP 10 FINAL CELEBRATES ITS 25th ANNIVERSARY WITH AN EXCEPTIONAL LINE-UP

Geneva, 3 November 2026 – On Friday, 11 December at 7:45 pm, the world's ten highest-ranked showjumpers will gather for one of the most eagerly anticipated events of the CHI Geneva: the 25th Rolex IJRC Top 10 Final, which will be held at Palexpo for the 21st time. To celebrate its quarter-century milestone, this iconic competition once again features a stellar field. Leading the pack is Germany's Richard Vogel, currently world No. 1 and team world champion, who will definitely be one of the riders to watch. He will be joined by American Kent Farrington, winner of the 2025 Rolex Grand Prix of Geneva, as well as Switzerland's Steve Guerdat, the reigning individual world champion. One female competitor will feature amongst the ten qualified riders, namely young French rider Nina Mallevaey. Currently eighth in the world rankings, her place in this line-up rewards her consistency throughout the season. Germany's Sophie Hinners is first reserve. This means that one, or potentially even two, female riders could line up in this prestigious event for the first time since 2016. Seven nations will be represented in this historic 25th edition.
